STRUCK A STONE

Several Men Injured in a Collision Between a Train and a Derrick.

BOSTON, June 19 .-- Two men were probably fatally injured and several others hurt by a train colliding with a heavy stone at Hogs bridge, Roxbury district, this afternoon. The names of the injured are: John Burgen, Quincy, cut about head and frac-tured skull; Joseph Kollidino, laborer, internal injuries; William Campbell, injured about hips. James Toole, and another workman were slightly injured. An inwardind suburban train, on the Providence division of the Consolidated road was pa ing a derrick, which was swinging a huge one into the new road bed. The men at the derrick were too late to prevent the train hitting the stone, which was pushed against the embankment, knocking down six workmen and swinging into the pas ger coach. The car was damaged but no one in it injured.

Hundreds of Congratulatory Messages Received from Politicians, Bankers and Business Men.

CANTON, O., June 19 .- Major McKinley home to-night. The day has been an eventful one. The wild enthusiasm of yesterday has increased; each incoming delegation is greeted by steam calliopes and shricking whistles of every kind, while trumpets, tin horns, bands and drum corps galore give music to the merry marchers. Delegations called to-night in rapid succession, but the MANTEL AND TILE STORE, after the strain of convention week. The first telegraphic announcement of far-away visitors to follow the Alliance, Akron, Massillon and Niles contingents of last night, was a telegram this morning from J. E. Milholland, of New York, to Governor McKinley, saying: "The New York McKinley League will congratulate you personally to-morow." According to a telegram from Cleveland this morning ten trainloads of people are arranging to come to Canton from the Forest City within a few days, and railroad men say that dozens of trainloads of people have contracted to stop at Canton on their way home from St. Louis east. Friday morning reported that there were congratulatory ing to the crush of matters there. Up to that Republican said the money question is te time several thousand had been received be the issue. The Republican party had by Governor McKinley, the rush beginning even before the nomination was announced.

THE NEW YORKERS ARRIVE. During the day the news spread that the New York McKinley League would stop on its way home from St. Louis and a party from Canton would come home this evening. It was shortly after 6 o'clock, just before the Major's dinner hour, when the approach of the New Yorkers and returning Cantonians, as well as a special trainload of five hundred people from Mahoning Valley, where Governor McKinley spent his boyhood days. An escort committee, with bands and drum corps, including fifty horsemen, met the delegations at the station. The streets were densely crowded for blocks in every direction leading to the Major's home. The crowds crushed through the fences and crowded into the doorways necessary for the Major to go to the side door to meet his returning fellow-citizens. as it was impossible for him to reach the ton, Young America, Royal Center, Deer front veranda where he has been speaking. The recollection of that scene can never be effaced from our memory. There we saw the Republican party place you in nomination and while it honored you it honored itself, and gave permanent expression to the wish and desire that have been in the hearts of the American people for many moths. M'KINLEY'S RESPONSE. In accepting the gift of flowers Major McKinley said:

McKinley said:

"My Fellow-citizens—How can I make fitting response to the splendid tribute which has been paid by three of my old and earliest friends? I think I might be excused by merely saying that I am inadequate to the task, and can only express my gratitude from a full and overflowing heart. I have had a good many touching incidents in my life. Yesterday, immediately after the nomination, I was surrounded by my neighbors and fellow-citizens, who did not go to St. Louis, and by friends from Alliance and Massillon; and then came four thousand more of them from the city of Akron last night. With all these tokens I was deeply and profoundly impressed, but somehow the words spoken by these three gentiemen, surrounded, as I am, by their associates, who journeyed together to St. Louis—somehow they touch me more deeply and sound the depths of my heart more profoundly than anything that has gone before. In this audience to-day are representatives from all of the counties which for years constituted my congressional district, and with which I have been associated all my this audience to-day are representatives from all of the counties which for years constituted my congressional district, and with which I have been associated all my life. A large number are here from Mahoning county (cheers from Mahoning citizens), the place where I spent all my boyheod, the county where I received my education and from which I enlisted in the war for the preservation of the Union, way back in 1861. (Loud and continuous cheering.) And then around me are later friends, for from Mahoning county I came to Stark nearly thirty-two years ago. You have all been my friends ever since; and the good people of Trumbull county and the good people of Mahoning and the Western Reserve, which was so long represented in the national House by Giddings, and Wade, and the immortal Garfield. (Applause.) And, my fellow-citizens, I will only add that I thank each and every one of you from the bottom of my heart for these manifestations of your friendship, your devotion and your loyalty. And as you seem to have brought back what you went for, those whom you left behind want me to say that they are glad to see you home again." glad to see you home again. The crowd then united in three rousing cheers for the "next President." WARNER MILLER'S SPEECH. By this time the New York party had succeeded in forcing its way to the front piazza, led by Hon. John E. Milholland. It took some time for Major McKinley to get through the house and through the crowd in the hall to greet his Eastern visltors. Mr. Milholland mounted the chair and presented ex-Senator Warner Miller, "Ladies and Gentlemen-I thought it proper on our way home from the St. Louis convention to call here and pay our respects to the man who has been honored by the Republican party and who is your fellow-citizen and neighbor. There was an affecting incident last night. When the bulletin announcing his nomination was received Major McKinley crossed from his private office, where he had been conversing with a number of his gentlemen friends, to where his wife and mother were seated. Turning to his wife he said. "Ida. Ohio has elected me," and kissed her. He then turned to the next chair, where his aged mother, eighty-seven years of age, was seated, and kissed her, too, and she congratulated her son. The ladies in the parlor were much affected by the scene, and many were moved to tears. The beautiful lawn and flower beds in front of the McKinley home show plainly the devastation of the surging thousands who tramped the life out of them. The first sound of the nomination had scarcely been heard when the enthusiastic visitors began plucking the flowers from a halfdozen beds, which were the work of florist Brown, an old employe of Mrs. McKinley's family, and who had taken great pride in beautifying the premises. The fences did not escape. In the great crush last night which lasted nearly seven hours, many women fainted, and but for the timely direction of the police personal injury would undoubtedly have resulted.

ST. LOUIS, June 19 .- The little band of tional convention yesterday labored all last night on "an appeal to the people of the M. Teller, of Colorado, chief of the bolters, for President. The appeal, though addressed "to the people," is intended principally for the Democrats, who will meet in convention at Chicago next month. The bolters also ask the support of the Populist this city. Ex-Congressman Bryan, the radical silver Democrat of Nebraska, has been in frequent conference with the Republican seceders, both before and after they walked cut of the convention, and it is supposed he took a prominent part in fram-

THE ALLEGED CAUSE. "What has been the cause of thi mighty oscillation of a mass which, this year, has probably obtained controlling inflationists thought he was their man, and he undoubtedly gladly would have been so if the cat had jumped that way. But it did proportions? Every man can answer to himself. If he has been an observer, if he has had interests that were affected, if he has felt a hope to see greater justice done modified, the East may be said to have been victorious. In most other respects," the Standard continues, "the East suffered and has seen that hope blasted; if he knows that the general dissatisfaction has ariser from the fact that party promises made eclipse. McKinley's victory over his rivals was the victory of the common-place well organized. He is not a distinguished man in any sense, nor learned, nor wise, but he made himself popular as Governor of Ohio, were broken to the people by party performance, he knows that so soon as the election was over and successful candidates installed they became the servitors of the party and the advocates of a narrow and nonprogressive policy within which alone there seemed to be an assurance of selfish safety and partisah approval.

"During all this period we have lacked a great constructive administration. No new social truth has been put forward in an effective way. While in all the departments of physical life there have been developments and achievements of ease and comfort to the favored of mankind, in the still fort to the favored of mankind, in the still greater and important domain of social reform we have stood still or retrogressed. It is not that the people have not felt the stirring of determination that this inaction has endured; but because of the rule of party, which has largely controlled men in and out of office. It has become a source of reproach to any man that he should dare to repource allegiance to organization. Men have been expected to submit their view to the dictation of conventions, although common knowledge that conventi have been swayed to views and decla tions not the most approved by the mas of the people nor progressive for their

But we feel that the time has come for the performance of a duty to this co try; and, for our part, though we shall stand alone, we will make an endeavor in the direction of that duty. Parties may outlive their usefulness; the truth never becomes obsolete. Every generation of fre men has the right to affirm the truths past knowledge and present acquireme and if the enforcement of these truths shall make necessary a departure from party or-ganization, the people have this right and will exercise it until old parties shall return to the truth, or new parties shall be
